Arts to Reap McCalla Benefits

The four McCalla Research Professorships recently awarded within the Faculty of Arts will open doors to research that crosses continents and spans centuries. A major novel on the Mennonite experience in Europe, a critical book on Charles Dickens as a "visual artist in words," a biography of the British poet FitzGerald, and an archeological study of an ancient Italian villa...these are the projects that will be pursued by the four most recent recipients of the EFF-funded McCalla Professorships. Rudy Wiebe, Juliet McMaster, Norman Page, and Alastair Small will be released from normal teaching and administrative responsibilities for the academic year 1983-84 in order to devote themselves to their respective research endeavors.

For those who have not surmised, the novel will be written by Rudy Wiebe, a man acknowledged by his peers and by the public as one of the most important novelists in this country.

Professor Wiebe is reluctant to discuss the details of his proposed novel. "It is impossible to say exactly what a novel will be about; writing one is rather like climbing a mountain which does not exist unless you climb it." Nonetheless, he explains that his proposal is for a major work focussing on the Mennonite experience in Europe. "Since coming to teach creative writing at U of A in 1967, I have written exclusively about the Canadian west...I now feel very strongly the need to go back to the stories of my theological and blood roots in Europe and Russia."

His proposal is, in the words of his friend and colleague Robert Kroetsch, writer and Professor of English at the University of Manitoba, "of major importance, in literary and cultural terms, for an understanding of where we are in terms of both time and space. Professor Wiebe is a major writer whose talents demand of him a major task. We have in this proposal an ideal meeting of talent and task." Margaret Atwood, one of Canada's best known novelists, supports strongly the concept of the McCalla in providing Wiebe the time needed to research the proposed novel. "Being a writer myself, I can testify that a year of time off would be of inestimable benefit to him."

Wiebe is author of numerous novels, short stories, dramas, and critical articles. He is responsible for the creation of the University's Writer-in-Residence program which has brought to the Department of English such notables as Matt Cohen, Marian Engel and Elizabeth Smart. He has been honored by such awards as the Governor General's Award for The Temptations of Big Bear (1973), the Province of Alberta Achievement Award (1974), the Edmonton Creative Arts Award (1975), and the 1979 Author's Award for the Best Short Story in Canada ("After thirty Years of Marriage"). He came on staff in the Department of English at this, his alma mater (BA 1956; MA 1960), in 1967. Since that time his accomplishments, both artistic and

The winners of the Universiade '83 International Student Poster Competition were announced and their entries displayed at a press conference on 14 April. Two first prizes were awarded: left, a powerful dynamic form, symbolizing mental energy transformed into physical action designed by Barbara Haskins, College of Design, Architecture and Arts, University of Cincinnati; right, a poster by Norman Grier, Department of Art and Design, University of Alberta, which outlines a fractured image of a stadium. Mr. Grier (left) is shown with Manuel Richardo of Universiade '83. A five-member jury, consisting of Wim Crowwel, University of Delft, Netherlands; Walter Jungkind, University of Alberta; Jim Donoahue, Donoahue Associates Ltd., Toronto; Marion Llewellyn, Long-Llewellyn Designers, Vancouver; and Dieter Urban, NOVUM magazine, Germany, selected the winners from more than 350 international entries.

academic, have placed him (in the words of Margaret Atwood) "in the top ranks both as a novelist and as a teacher."

Juliet McMaster is also a Professor of English. Her McCalla will take her into the world of Charles Dickens. According to George Orwell, "when Dickens has once described something you see it for the rest of your life." Dr. McMaster will explore the reasons for this, beginning with the premise that "Dickens' novels bear examination as visual compositions, like pictures. Many of his principles of design, like the opposition of light and dark, or the pointed exaggeration of physical features, are principles of painting and caricature."

Much of the background for her book, tentatively entitled Dickens the Designer, was done last year when Dr. McMaster was on study leave. Macmillan of London, publishers of Dr. McMaster's other works (and there are many) are "greatly pleased" about the project. So, too, her colleagues. Her subject is "an issue of the greatest importance," says James Kincaid, Professor of English at the University of Colorado, "but no one has had the tools and imaginative intelligence to tackle the subject directly and at length. Professor McMaster is the perfect person to do the job."

Born in Kenya, Dr. Mc-

Master is a graduate of Oxford University (BA 1959) and The University of Alberta (MA 1962; PhD 1965). She joined the Department of English here in 1965 and has gained a reputation as one of the country's most active scholars and critics of Victorian fiction. Author of several books and numerous articles, Dr. McMaster is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada and a Guggenheim Fellow.

The third McCalla Professorship awarded in Arts has gone to Norman Page, Professor of English, and recipient of a 1983 University of Alberta Research Prize. (See Folio, 17 March). Internationally recognized for his work as a critical biographer, Dr. Page will spend his release time working on a biography of Edward FitzGerald, a British poet of the 19th Century. According to Dr. Page, FitzGerald has a threefold importance for students of the Victorian period: as a poet and translator, as a letter-writer of outstanding quality, and as a member of a literary circle that included Tennyson, Thackeray, Carlyle and others. And according to his colleagues, Norman Page's "eminence as a research scholar and his experience as a writer" define him as the man best qualified to take on the job of preparing his biography. The biography will be the second in a trilogy of such studies undertaken by Dr. Page. The first, a biography of the scholar-poet A.E. Housman, is due for publication later this year. The third, to be undertaken as time allows, will be a biography of Thomas Gray, an 18th Century poet and scholar.

Born and raised in England, and a graduate of both Cambridge University (BA 1951; MA 1955) and the University of Leeds (PhD 1968), Dr. Page came to this University in 1969. Like Dr. McMaster, Dr. Page is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada and a 1979 Guggenheim Fellow.

The fourth, and final, McCalla Research Professorship awarded in the Faculty of Arts provides Alastair Small, Professor of Classics, with the time needed to prepare the final publication of a major archaeological excavation near San Giovanni di Ruoti, a Roman and early medieval site located in south Italy. The project is important for several reasons, says David Whitehouse, Director of the British School at Rome. "It is the only site of its kind in Italy to be excavated with modern techniques, and the implications of the social and economic history of the area are without precedent." The San Giovanni project has been very much a team effort, says Dr. Small in which his colleague R.J. Buck has been a particularly indispensable collaborator.

Dr. Small's role is crucial, both in the excavation and in the publication. This next year will see Dr. Small collate the stratigraphic data, produce a first draft of his chapters on the description and analysis of the buildings, and edit the contributions of others as they become available.

Born in Sydney, Australia, and a graduate of Oxford (BA 1964; MA 1968; DPhil 1972), Dr. Small came to The University of Alberta in 1968. He has an international reputation as an outstanding scholar, attested to by his appointment as the first director of the Canadian Academic Centre in Rome. Widely published and active on many national committees, Dr. Small is a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries (London), and a member of numerous international societies.

McCalla Professorships were established in 1980 with moneys from the Endowment Fund for the Future. □

Board of Governors

At its meeting of 8 April, the Board approved the 1983-84 preliminary operating budget. Included in the budget is a six percent increase in tuition fees effective 1 September 1983.

The preliminary operating budget provides for total net expenditures of $217 million; last year's figure approached $203 million. Revenues are projected at $215 million, an increase from $201 million in 1982-83.

The seven percent increase in the University's 1983-84 preliminary budget reflects salary settlements and inflation in other areas such as utilities and supplies, as well as a projected increase in enrolment of nine percent. The University will face an estimated deficit of $1.9 million.

The announced increase in the provincial government grant is five percent.

The six percent increase in tuition fees will raise tuition for the Faculties of Arts and Sciences to $770 from $726. Tuition for the Faculty of Engineering will be bumped from $912 to $969; the Faculties of Medicine and Dentistry will levy a $1,153 tuition fee. These fees remain among the lowest in Canada.

In order to recover the costs of administering the writing competency test, the Governors approved a fee of $15 per test (or re-test).

The fee, to be administered in the 1983-84 winter session, will apply only to those first-time registrants who do not have any advanced credit or advanced standing. That is, the fee will be charged to those students who have not taken courses at this or any other post-secondary institution which can be credited toward their degree.

However, beginning in the 1984-85 winter session, all students registering for the first time at this institution will pay the fee and must pass the test in order to qualify for enrolment.

In January 1983, General Faculties Council endorsed a report dealing with testing and remediation in writing competence and, specifically, a proposal stating that, in 1987, passing a writing competence test be made an admission requirement for all those seeking first undergraduate admission to the University, including students transferring from colleges and other universities. □

Faculty Appeal: The Second Wave

"As a cousin of mine once said about money, money is always there but the pockets change; it is not in the same pockets after a change, and that is all there is to say about money." Gertrude Stein.

The people behind the faculty appeal, an integral part of the University's 75th Anniversary

Appeal, would like to say more about money. Not necessarily the last word but rather a reminder that the opportunity to contribute to the "essential extras" that make the University a little bit special remains before the majority of the faculty. Approximately twenty-five percent of the 1,800 full-time faculty members have responded to the appeal which was launched in late January.

R.J Crawford, Chairman of the Faculty Appeal Committee, in telling Folio that about $450,000 has been received, spoke of the University having so little experience in fund raising. Outside of the 3AU Fund of several years ago, fund drives bearing directly on the University have not been plentiful. Dr. Crawford feels that a tradition could develop if people keep it in mind that all monies raised will be utilized in non-traditional budget ways.

"A lot of potentially good things" can be considered in view of the money that has reached the Fund Development Office to date. Two examples, according to Dr. Crawford, are the enhancement of the Breton Plots and the improvement of Faculté Saint-Jean's library.

Experience elsewhere has shown that second requests for funds are, in the main, successful. While the Faculty Appeal Committee's assignment is challenging, it is certainly not insurmountable. To raise $1.5 million each of the 1,800 faculty members would have to contribute $833.33. This can be pledged for payment over five years, thus making the annual amount $166.67 or $13.89 a month.

Contributions can be made for both capital and endowment and non-capital purposes. The 1980s Advanced Education Endowment Fund will match the principal amount of all capital donations and the income earned from endowments is also eligible for matching grants.

A letter of thanks and an official receipt will be sent to every donor.

As the faculty and alumni appeals wind down, the Fund Development Office will be gearing up to approach the corporate community. □

A Presidential Proclamation: Friday, 20 May, is University of Alberta Physical Activity Day

This event is part of National Physical Activity Week which will be held 14 to 23 May 1983. For the first time ever in Canada and under the auspices of Fitness Canada and Participation, this national event will involve Canadians from Newfoundland to Vancouver Island. The idea of the Special Week is to provide an opportunity for some people to demonstrate their commitment to fitness and, for others who keep promising themselves to get fit, that little extra incentive to get started.

Hundreds of sports clubs, organizations, agencies and institutions are planning one or more special events during that week to mark their involvement in fitness. At The University of Alberta I have been asked to declare Friday, 20 May, as our Physical Activity Day, and I am pleased to do so. To provide a focus for our activity, we shall be holding a mass walk around the campus. At 12:10 p.m. on that Friday, I invite all faculty and staff members to join me in this participation event. A circular walking course will be marked out around the campus. You'll need only to step out of your work location to join us. With Spring then upon us, I am sure we shall have a bright and pleasant day for our observance of National Physical Activity Week.

Study of Arab Peoples Receives Community Support

One of the success stories in recent years, in terms of our University expanding its foreign language offerings according to the needs of the community, has been the initiation of Arabic language studies within the Faculty of Arts as a joint project of the Departments of Classics and Religious Studies. Support for such studies, in fact the impetus to embark on them, has come from the community of Arabic speaking people in northern Alberta.

On 6 April, community support for the study of the Arab people gained a high profile when the Canadian-Arab Friendship Association of Edmonton presented a cheque to President Horowitz in the amount of $14,700. This initial contribution has been designated to the establishment of a "Trust Fund for the Study of the Arab People."

The generous donation was presented by Said Mais and Richard Awid, respectively President and Treasurer of the Canadian-Arab Friendship Association of Edmonton. Also participating in the ceremony were Dean White of the Faculty of Arts; John Wilson, Chairman of Classics; Dad Prithipaul, Chairman of Religious Studies, and his colleague Earle Waugh; and Baha Abu-Laban, Associate Vice-President (Research).

This latest initiative of the Canadian-Arab Friendship Association of Edmonton follows on from the Arabic language project that was begun in the Faculty of Arts in Fall 1980. At that time, a group of private individuals in Edmonton, united by common love of their native tongue and culture, and represented by local businessman Mohamed H. Assaf, presented a cheque to the Dean of Arts to assist the establishment of an Arabic 100 language course. Support for study of the Arabic language was significantly enhanced in the following year when His Excellency 'Abdo Al-Dairi, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Republic of Iraq, presented a cheque for

"Ribbon-cutting" to Highlight Senate Meeting

The final meeting of the University Senate for this academic year is set for Friday, 29 April. Beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the Council Chamber of University Hall, Senate will deal with several important issues. An announcement concerning honorary degree recipients for Spring Convocation will be received, as will a report from the ad hoc committee on Community Service Awards. Discussion will focus on the forthcoming National Universities Week (see Folio, 3 March) and the role of Senate in the October celebrations. In addition, Senate will hear from Peter Freeman, the University's Chief Librarian, who will report on activities and future directions of the library system.

At noon, Senators will join with representatives of the University community, including members of the Board of Governors, for an informal official re-opening of Assiniboia Hall. Built in 1912 and reconstructed in 1982, Assiniboia Hall now houses several academic and support offices.

Both the Senate meeting and the re-opening ceremonies (which will begin at high noon in the foyer of Assiniboia Hall) are open to the public. □

$25,000 on behalf of his government to assist in the continuance of the language program. Support for the elementary language courses has been enthusiastic and, now that the three-year trial period is over, the Faculty of Arts will continue the courses as part of the University's regular offerings.

The new Trust Fund will be used to expand Arab studies at this University by underwriting the costs of courses, in several departments, that relate to the study of the Arab people. It is expected that departments such as Political Science, Anthropology, Economics, History, Sociology, and Religious Studies will present courses from time to time that will enhance an understanding in Canada of the Middle East.

It is noteworthy that Arabic speaking people were among the earliest immigrants to our part of the world, arriving here before Alberta became a province in 1905. Settling first in the Lac La Biche and Edmonton areas, their descendants and later immigrants have maintained a sense of community that transcends national origins and religious persuasions.

The "Trust Fund for the Study of the Arab People" is supported by voluntary contributions. It is anticipated that further donations from groups and individuals will ensure that a broad range of courses will be available to students and the wider public.

As an incentive to readers who might wish to contribute to the Trust Fund, it should be noted that interest earned on the monies in the Trust Fund account will be matched annually according to the generous provisions of the Province's Endowment Fund for the 1980s. □

University Tennis Centre Meeting

The University Tennis Centre adjacent to Michener Park will be available for University use after the World University Games. As with all recreational facilities on campus, the control and programming of the Centre comes under the jurisdiction of the Faculty of Physical Education and Recreation.

An ad hoc committee formed by the Dean has scheduled an open meeting at which interested members of the University community can present their points of view. Said meeting will be held Thursday, 28 April, at 4:30 p.m. in E-120 (East Wing) Physical Education Centre.

A brief explanation of the Tennis Centre will precede an open discussion. Those who are unable to attend but who would like to contribute some input, are asked to drop a note to the Assistant to the Dean, Faculty of Physical Education and Recreation, E-469 Physical Education and Recreation Centre.

Concerns of International Students to be Focus of Major Seminar

The President's Committee on International Development will hold its third annual seminar, "International Development and the University," on 6 May, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The seminar will be held in "The Ship" of Lister Hall. There will be no charge.

Interested University staff and students are invited to participate in a discussion of some of the concerns and issues that are associated with the University's efforts to support international development. The University's major thrust in international development is, naturally, the education of international students. Issues pertinent to the international students on campus will be the primary focus of the seminar. Topics to be considered will include such matters as the social environment of the University's campus; University policies as they relate to international students; immigration concerns; and re-entry problems faced by international students.

Staff and student panelists will facilitate the discussion.

To assist the seminar organizers in their preparations—including lunch at noon—interested people are asked to register for the seminar before 29 April. Simply telephone the Faculty of Extension at 432-3035 and ask to be registered in the seminar, "International Development and the University."

For further information about the seminar, please contact Merril McDonald at 432-3035. □

International Conference on Number Theory

An International Conference on Number Theory, quite likely the first of its kind ever organized in Canada, will be held on 28, 29, and 30 April on the second floor of the Central Academic Building (CAB). The conference will be attended by number theorists from various universities and institutions in Canada and the United States, as well as a few from Europe and Asia.

The program consists of about fifty presentations which include hour long lectures and brief talks of about twenty minutes each on various topics of current research. There will also be a problem session in the afternoon of 30 April.

The conference has received substantial financial support from the National Research Council, the University Conference Grants Committee and the University's Vice-President (Research), to whom the organizers are thankful.

The opening session will be on 28 April in 239 CAB at 9:25 a.m. with words of welcome by President Horowitz.

For anyone desiring to participate in the conference, the registration fee is $35 payable at the Department of Mathematics (cheques to be made out to the University). For further information, contact M.V. Subbarao at 432-4579. □

Coming Events

Lectures and Seminars

Canadian Literatures

22 April, 7:30 p.m. and 23 April, 8 p.m. This conference is designed primarily to discuss Canadian literatures from a variety of critical points of view. It was set up as a joint project between the Edmonton School Boards and the Departments of English, Comparative Literature, and Secondary Education with a view to examining these literatures in their national (English/French) and international contexts, as well as bringing to bear critical methods of approach such as feminism on their analysis. 2-115 Education North.

Department of Immunology

25 April, 11 a.m. George A. Carlson, Jackson Laboratories, Bar Harbor, Maine, will present a seminar entitled "H-2 Associated Natural Resistance." Dr. Carlson is an internationally known expert in the field of natural resistance to tumors. The speaker is being sponsored by The Alberta Heritage Foundation for Medical Research. 8-66 Medical Sciences Building.

Limnology and Fisheries Discussion Group

28 April, noon. Sean McNicholas will speak on "Aspects of Toxic Cyanobacteria (Blue-green Algae)." G217 Biological Sciences Building.

Department of Pharmacology

3 May, 10 a.m. Michael K. Bach, Senior Research Scientist, Hypersensitivity Diseases Research, The Upjohn Company, Kalamazoo, Michigan, will speak on "The Immunopharmacology of the Leukotrienes." 9-68 Medical Sciences Building.

Department of Botany

4 May, 4 p.m. Edward Wiley, University of Kansas, will present a seminar on "Cladistics." M-137 Biological Sciences Building.

Seminar on International Development

6 May, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The President's Committee on International Development will hold its third annual seminar "International Development and the University." Register for the seminar prior to 29 April. For more details, contact Merrill McDonald at 432-3035.

Faculty Women's Club

8 May, 11:30 a.m. A Champagne Brunch will take place in the lounge of the University Pavilion. Members of the faculty and friends are cordially invited to attend. Administrative and Professional Officer,

Department of Biochemistry

The Department of Biochemistry (comprising 20 academic staff members and 150 non-academic staff, researchers and graduate students) invites applications from suitably qualified persons for the position of Administrative and Professional Officer (APO) to commence 1 July 1983. The salary range for this position is $24,846 to $37,266 per annum. The APO reports directly to the Chairman, and is responsible for the administrative management of the Department (including supervision of non-academic staff), the preparation and monitoring of budgets (operating, capital, and trust), time-tabling, student registration, the compiling of statistics, and otherwise assisting the Chairman in all matters conducive to the efficiency and harmony of the Department. In addition, the APO is responsible for liaison with the Office of the Dean of Medicine, University Service Departments such as Materials Management, Personnel and Physical Plant, and the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research.

The position calls for someone with intelligence, tact and initiative, capable of working authoritatively with a variety of people, and possessing office skills such as typing and familiarity with computer terminals.

Applications, including a résumé of educational background and employment experience as well as the names of individuals who may be contacted for reference, should be mailed to: APO Selections Committee, Department of Biochemistry, The University of Alberta, Edmonton, Alberta T6G 2H7.

The closing date for receipt of applications is 30 April 1983. Please do not apply in person or by telephone. Suitable applicants will be contacted and arrangements made for an interview.

Head, Health Sciences Library

The University of Alberta Library invites applications for the position of Head, Health Sciences Library. Qualifications required include a degree in library science, administrative experience, and a background in health sciences.

Reporting directly to the Chief Librarian, the incumbent is responsible for operation and development of the Health Sciences Library with particular responsibility for planning, policy formulation, budget preparation and control, and staff deployment. Oversight of the collection development process and liaison with teaching departments is also involved. The Health Sciences Library will move into new quarters in the Health Sciences Centre in 1984. At that time it is expected that the incumbent will supervise seven professional staff and fifteen support staff.

The position is classified at the Librarian 5 level, with a salary range of $40,644 to $50,528 (1982-83). The date of appointment is 1 September 1983. Applicants should send curriculum vitae, transcripts of academic record, and the names of three references to Peter Freeman, Chief Librarian, The University of Alberta, Edmonton, Alberta T6G 2J8. Closing date is 31 May 1983.
